

Coghlin Companies and Jabil Develop Strategic Alliance to Provide Total Product Lifecycle Solution

WORCESTER, MASS – November 12, 2012 - Coghlin Companies and Jabil signed an agreement to provide manufacturing lifecycle solutions for healthcare and other capital equipment, product based innovators. The alliance creates the ability to accelerate a customer's product launch from low volume all the way through turnkey global, scaled production.

"The agreement with Coghlin Companies keeps future opportunities on our radar screen," said David Atkinson, Sr. Business Unit Director – Jabil Healthcare & Life Sciences. "Together, we can provide medical technology and other innovation customers with a strategy that will last the duration of their product lifecycle; for any volume and supply chain complexity including refurbishment and other aftermarket services."

"Coghlin Companies collaborates with innovative leaders to bring technology products to market including medical, clinical, storage, semiconductor, green technology, military and homeland security," said Chris Coghlin, President and CEO, Coghlin Companies. "Working together with Jabil, we expand our joint ability to offer medical device and other customers the best of all manufacturing worlds – a nurturing partner for fast, flexible product development and a path to grow into a global footprint with the supply chain advantages of one of the world's largest electronic manufacturing services providers."
