

Cogmedix Welcomes New VP of Engineering

WORCESTER, MA, November 16, 2016—As part of an initiative to expand and accelerate its medical device design and engineering service offering, Cogmedix has added Paul Dunleavy to its team of Caring Associates as its Vice President of Engineering.

“Over the past two years we have worked hard on our engineering processes to ensure we are fully compliant with design control requirements of the FDA Quality System Regulation and ISO 13485,” said Cogmedix Executive Vice President and General Manager, Matt Giza. “This included the development of concise work instructions and processes, as well as nurturing promising engineering opportunities. Paul’s impressive background and experience with medical device equipment engineering will be a tremendous asset as we move forward with this initiative.”

Paul Dunleavy is a graduate of Northeastern University and has a Bachelor’s of Science in electrical engineering and a High-Tech Master’s Degree in business administration. He served in the United States Marine Corps and has developed an impressive career in medical device development spanning more than 25 years. His experience includes engineering, quality assurance, regulatory compliance, clinical studies, and team leadership. Paul is also the founder and cofounder of two medical device companies and possesses several patents for medical equipment. In his new role as Vice President of Engineering, Mr. Dunleavy will oversee the design and development of new medical equipment at Cogmedix and direct the engineering team.
